George has been advising employers in labor and employment matters for more than 20 years, with a focus on traditional labor matters such as collective bargaining and union-management relations, employment litigation, and wage and hour advice and litigation in both the public and private sectors.

George represents businesses, municipalities, nonprofits, and educational institutions in all aspects of labor and employment law, including federal and state court trial proceedings involving equal employment opportunity laws, such as Title VII, the Americans With Disabilities Act, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, the Family and Medical Leave Act, the Pennsylvania Human Relations Act, and the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination. He has extensive experience handling wage and hour litigation under the Fair Labor Standards Act and state wage and hour laws, including the defense of class and collective actions, as well as investigations by the U.S. Department of Labor and similar state and local agencies.

George has advised employers facing workforce reductions and handled claims under the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act. George also drafts and negotiates executive and other employment contracts, advises on workplace policies and internal investigations, and handles OSHA investigations and unemployment claims. He has represented clients facing whistleblower claims under various statutes, common law claims including defamation and wrongful discharge, and First Amendment, due process, and other Constitutional claims. He has also represented railroads and airlines in litigation under the Railway Labor Act.

George is recognized for his experience advising employers on complying with Pennsylvania's Medical Marijuana law. He is a frequent speaker on the topic and has testified about complying with the law before a committee of Philadelphia's City Council.

A sampling of the matters George has handled include:

- Negotiated collective bargaining agreements for public and private-sector employers, and handled dozens of labor arbitrations.
- Advised employers facing unionization efforts, counseled clients on union avoidance, and handled strikes and picketing.
- Handled proceedings before the National Labor Relations Board, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board and similar agencies.
- Represented a national construction company in litigation against a group of unions seeking to interfere with a project being done with both union and non-union labor and obtained a strong injunction prohibiting union interference, which was upheld by the Pennsylvania Superior Court.
- Handled labor and employment matters for emergency service providers, including volunteer fire and ambulance companies.
- Obtained summary judgment for a major municipality facing more than $3 million in potential liability in an FLSA collective action claim brought by its prison guards seeking additional overtime pay for clothes-changing time, and successfully handled the appeal before the Third Circuit Court of Appeals.
- Obtained dismissal of a class action brought by the U.S. Secretary of Labor against a major
