Madeline concentrates her practice on civil litigation, with a focus on commercial and real estate matters. She has experience conducting legal research and analysis, drafting a variety of motions, briefs, and applications, overseeing all stages of discovery, preparing clients for depositions and hearings, and representing clients at hearings, conferences, and arbitrations.

Prior to joining the firm, Madeline was a litigation associate with a boutique firm based in Los Angeles, where, acting as first and second chair, she secured several favorable rulings on behalf of her residential and commercial clients.

Madeline earned her undergraduate degree from the University of California, Berkeley, and her law degree from the University of California, Los Angeles School of Law, where she was an associate editor of the UCLA Law Review and the managing editor of the UCLA Women's Law Journal.

Experience

Secured a defense verdict after four-week trial in Los Angeles County in a case stemming from an accident the plaintiff alleged was caused by our trucking industry client's driver. The plaintiff sought more than $10 million in damages, liability was hotly contested, and we precluded the plaintiff's liability expert from offering certain evidence at trial. After three days of deliberation, the jury found that our client was not negligent.
