

Are Labor Unions Making a Comeback in America?

Monday, May 23, 2022

Daniel Johns joined the Shaping Opinion podcast to talk about why all of a sudden employees at some well-known companies are organizing to unionize their workforces. Amid some union victories at some major American brands, successful organizing efforts to unionize employees in places like Buffalo and Staten Island have given the organized labor movement hope that new generations may embrace collective bargaining as the “new” way to go to work.

To listen to the podcast, click here.

Related Practice Areas

- Labor & Employment