Monday, October 3, 2022

Michael Schmidt spoke with the New York Law Journal about his time using innovation as an attorney. When asked what his proudest achievement of the past year was, Mike said; "The "Employment Law Now" podcast has certainly expanded my legal practice. But the thing I am actually most proud of is the benefit it provides to other counsel around the country." When discussing obstacles that stood in his way with the podcast, he said; "The hardest thing about launching the podcast was learning how to provide excellent content on a consistent basis in the right format. I wanted to address the hottest employment law trends and developments that would most interest listeners, but also develop a singular voice and style that people could come to expect in every episode."
