Bryce Matthews joined Cozen O'Connor Public Strategies in 2024 and advocates for a wide array of clients in front of administration officials, members of Congress, and their respective staff. This includes advising on legislative strategy, analyzing policy proposals, and facilitating meetings with influential stakeholders to advance client interests.

Prior to joining the team, Bryce spent three years in the House of Representatives serving in the office of Congressman August Pfluger (Texas) as a legislative aide, advising the member on tax, trade, financial services, and small business policies. Bryce also held internships with other members of the Texas congressional delegation, including former Senate Majority Whip John Cornyn and the former Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee Mike Conaway.

A Texas native, Bryce earned his bachelor's degree in economics and political science from Texas Tech University.
