

Expanding Scope Of Practice: Pamela Dorian Reflects

Thursday, June 22, 2023

In an interview with Third Thursday, Pamela Dorian, a member of the firm's Commercial Litigation Department, discussed her experiences with construction defect cases and the advice she would give to construction law attorneys looking to handle these types of cases. "The best advice I ever received, both in law and in life, is to surround myself with people who can offer different perspectives," said Pam. "As someone with more of a general background in complex commercial litigation, I cannot overstate how valuable it has been to draw from these different perspectives in approaching any given construction defect action. So, whether it is through colleagues, expert witnesses, or consultants, my advice is to be open to collaboration on these types of cases."

To read the full interview, click here.

Related Practice Areas

- Commercial Litigation
- Construction Law